desorption electrospray ionization-electrospray ionization-tandem mass spectrometry for the direct analysis of ephedrines in dietary supplements. An offline desorption electrospray ionization (DESI) ion source coupled to a continuous flow electrospray source (ESI-triple quadrupole (QqQ)) is demonstrated as a new method for the analysis of ephedrines in dietary supplements. DESI is used to form droplets in the nebulization chamber of the continuous flow ESI source and subsequently desorb the analytes into the ES source for analysis by selected ion monitoring (SIM) of precursor ions (308.1-->172.1, 308.1-->206.1). The desorption process avoids the generation of solvent droplets that can react with the ESI source. The spray and ionization source conditions are controlled to obtain optimal SIM and multiple reaction monitoring (MRM) chromatographic responses in both positive and negative ion modes. Droplets were produced when the nebulizer solution was passed through the nebulizer chamber
